Amanda— Monochromatic

My favorite item is my beige pumps. I can walk forever in these, and they go with everything I own.

Jones New York sheer gold top-$4.99 (Goodwill)

Exhilaration ream and gold dress, Brand New-$2.99 (Goodwill)

Leather belt-$1.99 (Goodwill)

Gold necklace-$1.99 (Goodwill)

Liz Claiborne bag-$4.99 (Goodwill)

Beige pumps (Amanda)

Using high fashion as his influence, Bjorn does his version of "monochromatic" event dressing. He started with our model Amanda's favorite item, her beige pumps. These are a great staple in a woman's wardrobe, as they create elongation of the legs by having on continuous tone. With that in mind, he found a brand new tunic dress with delicate taupe sequin detail on a creamy ivory jersey. Since it was a sleeveless tunic, he paired a sheer blouse with a complementary tone or tone print that worked perfectly under the dress.

When doing monochromatic, you can layer accessories liberally as long as they are in the same tone, like the pendant necklace in gold and pearls, the ivory handbag, and skinny leather belt. This is a look that can be worn with or without the blouse underneath depending on the event you're going to. Remember the key to sequined items and sparkle is to have them subtle as in this ensemble. Layering is the best way to keep your outfits looking fresh and sophisticated.

Garret – Urban Influence

My favorite item is my headphones. They have great sound!

Ocean Pacific shorts-$3.99 (Goodwill)

Outback Red jacket-$4.99 (Goodwill)

T-shirt-$2.99 (Goodwill)

Long sleeve dark blue t-shirt-$3.99 (Goodwill)

Boots-$19.99 (Goodwill)

Headphones (Garret)

Bjorn wanted to show with our model Garret that layering is not just for women alone! Here he did an urban influenced look based on Garret's favorite item, his vintage look headphones! This cool look was really anchored with the combat boots. From there he added our basic shorts in brown, and did the popular layered t-shirt look, with a long sleeved navy shirt under a short sleeve white shirt.

Topping it all off he found a vintage "safari style" jacket, that is currently all the rage, with great details like sewn on pockets and epaulets. This is a fun, high fashion, "edgy" look that keeps the party going!
